Prosser, the jury repaired to the grand jury room at the Court House where they listened to the testimony of several witnesses. A verdict was rendered of accidental death by drowning.

Situation at Homestead.

The situation at Homestead has remained unchanged so far as any outward demonstration is concerned; but the principal parties concerned have not been idle. Having gained possession of their works through the intervention of the state militia, the managers of the mills made preparations to resume operations with a force of non-union workmen. Though martial law has not been declared at Homestead, it practically exists there. Meanwhile a congressional committee has been examining witnesses and gathering from the eliminations and recriminations such information with regard to the riot as may be needed in the final adjustment. Frick having refused to confer with the Homestead workmen, the members of the Amalgamated Association employed in Carnegie's mills at Pittsburgh deserted their work in a sympathetic strike. Frick published a card declaring that while he would hold no intercourse with the Association, if the revolting workmen at Homestead would apply individually, with the exception of the leaders they would be re-employed. If this proposition was not accepted, non-union men would be employed. The strikers, however, proposed to fight the thing out legally and legitimately, and think that they can boycott Carnegie into submission; but they have probably underestimated his Scotch stubbornness. The cost of the difficulty already exceeds $1,000,000, and there is no immediate prospect of a settlement. Within the past forty-eight hours warrants have been issued for fourteen of the leading rioters among the workmen, who are therein charged with murder. This was a coup on the part of the company entirely unlooked for by the men. Several arrests have been made and the matter assumed for the leaders a serious aspect. Non-union men will be put to work this week.

A vigorous statement of the scientific principles upon which the treatment of criminals should be based will open The Popular Science Monthly for August. It is by Prof. Edward S. Morse, who takes as his title Natural Selection and Crime.

A tailor named Lundergon, who works for M. Cahill, made a running jump of seventeen feet and six inches last night. His home was formerly in Polo, and he is a member of the running team in the Dixon Hook & Ladder company.

The Manufacture of Boots and Shoes will be described by George A. Rich in The Popular Science Monthly for August. This is one of the illustrated series of articles on American Industries, and, in both the text and the pictures, tells a story of wonderful progress.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Lutheran church will have a lawn sociable Thursday evening, July 21st, at the residence of Andrew Hatch, 360 Nachusa avenue. Ice cream and cake will be served. The proceeds to go for the repairing of the church. Every body welcome.

Kennedy & Bowman have placed their Economy hot air heater, during the past season, in the residences of Miss Blanche Marquis, Prof. W. F. Strong, Louis Stephan, Jr., and C. H. Stackpole, and have an order to place one in the new residence of N. F. Swartwout.

The Hook & Ladder running team is working hard for the coming tournament at Ottawa, Aug. 30, 31, Sept. 1. They had a practice run last night and everything worked well. The Hose team has not organized yet, but expects to very soon. The boys hope to renew their success of former years.

An amusing incident is related of a Dixon young man who visited Chicago during the stay of the actress, Miss Hel-yett at the Columbia. A city friend inquired of him if he had been to Hel-yett, pronounced with a pause after the first syllable. Our citizen though he had been asked whether he had been to a region best typified on earth by Am-boy, and replied that he had not been there yet, but he had a red-headed friend connected with the electric light works who went down every week.

J. H. Kelly, chairman of the executive board of the Associated Keeley Bi-choride of Gold Clubs, has issued a call for the second general convention of the organization, to be held at Dwight beginning Sept. 13. It is expected that five hundred delegates will be in attendance and that five thousand Keeley graduates and others interested in the work will visit Dwight at that time. It is said that there are sixty thousand graduates of the Keeley Institute in this country to-day. The object of the meeting is a very good one, that of furthering the cause of temperance.

STARTED THE MILL.

The Carnegie Company Makes a Show of Work.

SOME ARMOR PLATE TURNED OUT.

About 175 Men Supposed to Be Inside the High Fence, But the Old Hands Confident of Winning the Fight—Gov. Pattison Arrives to Inspect the Troops—Eight More Warrants Out for Strikers, but no Further Arrests—The Counter-Movement Hangs Fire and the Officials not Worrying—Situation in Cœur d'Alene Growing More Warlike.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 20.—The two features of the situation here yesterday were the arrival and military reception of Governor Pattison and the commencement of work in the mills. Pattison did not get off the train at the station, where there was a crowd of citizens waiting to see him arrive. His car was switched off and sent through the mill property, and the first intimation the inhabitants had of his presence was the booming of the cannon giving the governor's salute of seventeen guns. He was escorted from the mill to Camp Black by cavalry and was soon at home in a comfortable tent erected for him. During the day he put in his time inspecting the troops, which is his business here.

Non-Union Men at Work.
The other feature was of infinitely more moment to the strikers and their families. It was something of a surprise to them to see smoke issuing from the armor plate mill yesterday morning, and they were still more surprised at noon when the big whistle was blown for the dinner hour. The full power of the whistle was not put in operation, but the people recognized the old-time sound and many of them looked down toward the entrance to the works to see if gangs of workers were not pouring out on their several ways to dinner. But none came. There were workmen inside the works, however, and they were pursuing their duties in a business-like way, seemingly without thought that an armed guard was necessary to protect them. These men were brought into the works secretly by the company within the past week.

How They Got Into the Mill.
They came a few at a time until Monday when the company succeeded in getting in a number of workers sufficient to guarantee the starting up the armor plate mill. Some of these men were probably landed at the mill between sunset Monday evening and daylight yesterday morning by the Little Hill under protection of the military. Later in the day the Tide, a small stern-wheel tug, brought a number of men up the Monongahela from the direction of Pittsburgh and landed them at the works. The company is believed to have 175 men in the armor plate mill; included among these are five steel workers believed to have been brought from the works of the company at Bradock. All the men in the mill, are, of course, non-union.

Turned Out a Piece of Work.
Yesterday afternoon some of the new workmen made a protective shield for heavy marine guns in the presence of a number of the militia officers. In spite of these facts the leaders of the men "keep a stiff upper lip" and do not appear downcast. They stand by their contention that the company cannot get the skilled workmen, and that if it does its work will be boycotted by every branch of trades unionism which comes in contact with it. Meanwhile the non-union men in the mill ready for another day's work. They are provided with sleeping accommodations in the armor plate mill and have every comfort that the company could provide. Their meals are cooked inside the works and every preparation for a long siege has been made.

THOSE COUNTER PROSECUTIONS.
The Amalgamated People Not Certain That They Will Stand.

The members of the Amalgamated association have practically decided to apply for warrants for Frick, Andrew Carnegie and others, but are still in consultation with counsel as to whether the warrants, if sworn out for murder and treason, will hold. They are determined to offset the action of the company's officials by obtaining these warrants, if possible, and the men are confident that they will succeed. The delay in making information against Carnegie is said to be due to the hesitancy of W. J. Brennan, counsel of the association, in advising such a course until permanent counsel has been secured for the coming battle in the courts.

Subpoena Served at Homestead.
No attempt was made yesterday to serve warrants on the five men in Homestead who, with John McLuckie and Hugh O'Donnell, are charged with murder committed on the day the Pinkertons were repulsed. Constable Webber, one of the trio sent out by the five men wanted, came to Homestead early in the afternoon with subpoenas for people whose evidence is wanted at the hearing Burgess McLuckie will receive at Pittsburgh. This was accomplished without trouble. When the subpoena had been served, Constable Webber went back to Pittsburgh having attempted to arrest Ross, Critchlow, Flanna, an Burkett or Flaherty.

The O.K. Accused Strike Leaders.
The accused men have decided to evade arrest until after the McLuckie hearing. If the burgess is admitted to bail they will immediately surrender and ask release under bond on the same grounds as those asked by McLuckie. They have not made any decision as to what they will do if bail is refused the burgess. Hugh O'Donnell's friends say they expect him back in Homestead today. The fact that a warrant for his arrest has been issued must be known to him by this time and his many admirers here contend that he is not the kind of a man who would run away at this critical time.

The Troops Will Stay to the End.
Major-General Snowden, commanding the state troops here, has decided not to withdraw his division until some definite settlement that will preclude further trouble of a serious character has been reached between the Carnegie Steel company and the Amalgamated association. He declared last night that his whole command would remain until peace was entirely established. General Snowden has carefully considered the situation and he evidently does not place reliance in the statements made that matters will remain as peaceful as they apparently are at present, if the troops are withdrawn.

After Eight More Strikers.
Secretary Lovejoy yesterday swore in formations against eight more leaders of the mill men and warrants were issued for their arrest. The officials of the company are not at all worried over the report that information will be made against them. Secretary Lovejoy smiled when asked if he had arranged for bail and said: "We have no fears of any arrests or informations, and do not believe they can be so ill-advised as to take this step. They were the trespassers and aggressors and are in no position to charge any crime on the company or its agents."

Detectives Saw the Battle.
E. Y. Beck, one of the company's counsel, said yesterday: "It is not only true that the company had Pinkerton men on the ground, but that they had other detectives right in the works. These men saw the whole battle and took notes of names and events, and they are prepared to identify the men whom we have prosecuted and those yet to be arrested in the bloody affray. It is also true that they took kodak pictures of the scene, which are good enough to be placed in evidence in court."

IN THE CŒUR D'ALENE.
Strikers Entrenched and Defying Troops—Train Held Up.

WALLACE, Ida., July 20.—It was reported Monday night that serious trouble was brewing on the Montana line. Large numbers of armed men were seen on the mountains near Mullane and beyond at a point called Sultes. Yesterday morning two companies left here for Mullane and another company was picked up on the road. General Carlin and staff passed on a special train and took General Curtis from here. John Clark came here from above and said that the miners had thrown up entrenchments above Mullane and were ready to fight and that Web Lesuire, a desperate outlaw, was in command and had sent word to the military authorities that his men were ready for them if they dared come.

Conductor Threatened with Death.
A report that a Northern Pacific train was stopped Monday night was confirmed last night. Three armed men did it and were bold and defiant. In the work they waited for the train on the summit near the Montana line, and after bringing it to a standstill told conductor Bradley that he had been warned three times to keep away from the country, and that if he returned he would be killed. It was this circumstance that led to the sending of troops to Sultes.

Warrants for Arrest of Strikers.
BOISE CITY, Ida., July 20.—United States Marshal Pinkham started for the Cœur d'Alene today with warrants for the arrest of the leaders of the insurrection against whom judgments were recently issued. Warrants were issued yesterday afternoon after Judge Hagan had made a showing on behalf of the Mine Owners' association before Judge Beattie. The names of the men against whom warrants have been issued are not obtainable, but it is known that only the leaders will be taken at present.

Suicide and Superstition.
CINCINNATI, July 20.—On Sunday, July 10, Frank Stewart, the son of wealthy parents, but with a penchant for betting on the races, shot himself in the side, inflicting a fatal wound. Stewart was in the employ of Colonel M. J. Enright, who conducted a pool room in Covington and has lost heavily. Superstitions feed on the part of pool room proprietors caused them to issue an order Monday prohibiting all their employees from betting in any pool room. The men threaten to quit work and boycott the rooms if the order is enforced.

On the Base Ball Diamond.
CHICAGO, July 20.—Following are the League scores at base ball reported yesterday. At Philadelphia—Chicago 6, Philadelphia 7; at Baltimore—Cleveland 6, Baltimore 7; at Washington—Louisville 6, Washington 7; at Boston—Cincinnati 3, Boston 3; at New York—Pittsburgh 3, New York 1; at Brooklyn—St. Louis 0, Brooklyn 1; (second game) St. Louis 0, Brooklyn 3.

Illinois-Iowa: At Rockford—Jacksonville 4, Rockford 3; at Rock Island—Joliet 7, Rock Island-Moline 6.

It Was Touch and Go.
MANCHESTER BY THE SEA, July 20.—As Cornelius Vanderbilt was en route to church Sunday, and as the carriage reached a railway crossing, a train dashed up. Mr. Vanderbilt called to his coachman to stop, but he could not do so, and feeling that safety lay in speed alone, he lashed his horses with the whip. The animals sprang forward and cleared the track just in time to escape the engine.

Played Cards Under a Car.
ATLANTIC CITY, Iowa, July 20.—Three boys, John McKay, Joe Wranzelle and Joe Sandberg, aged 14, were playing cards under a car on the side track here Monday. During a flying switch their car was struck. McKay's body was cut in two, Wranzelle's right leg was cut completely off and Sandberg, who hugged the ground between the rails, was so badly cut and bruised that he will probably die.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 20.—Thomas Webb, an English stonemason, was supposed to be a poor man. He died July 4. An examination of his effects has just been made which resulted in bringing to light $3,200 in cash and checks found in his trunk. He had thrown into the trunk a number of sealed envelopes containing money received from his employers which he had not opened.

Prominent Indian Found Dead.
PETERSBURG, Ind., July 20.—Joseph C. Ridge, ex-county recorder and a prominent Democratic politician, was found dead in his bed at home, in Marion township, yesterday morning, the result of an overdose of morphine.

FAIR GETS NO CASH.

House Strikes Out the Appropriation.

ADVERSE MAJORITY OF THIRTEEN.

Hopes that the Senate May Stand Firm and See the Great Enterprise Through—Lists of the Men Who Voted Aye and Nay—Financial Discussion in the Senate—Morgan's Legal Tender Resolution the Subject—The Anti-Option Bill Up—Justice Bradley's Successor Appointed.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The World's fair appropriation is at the mercy of a conference. The house sent it there yesterday. What it may hope from that sort of body is somewhat problematical, but its friends are hopeful enough. The belief that the senate can and will insist successfully on the appropriation, and the fact that there was only thirteen majority against the clause would be in the senate's favor if its conferees should choose to stand by the appropriation. The house was quick enough, however, to adopt the provision that the fair be closed Sunday.

The Way Members Voted.
Upon the motion that the senate amendment appropriating $5,000,000 to the fair be non-concurred in the yeas vote was as follows: Alexander, Bailey, Baker, Bankhead, Beaman, Bentley, Blanchard, Brand, Branch, Breckinridge of Arkansas, Brookshire, Brown, Brunner, Bryan, Buchanan of Virginia, Bunn, Bunting, Butler, Byrnes, Campbell, Canth, Cate, Clancy, Clarke of Alabama, Closser, Cobb of Alabama, Cobb of Missouri, Compton, Coombs, Covert, Cowles, Cox of New York, Crain, Crawford, Crosby, Culbertson, Cummings, Davis, Deamond, De Forest, Dickerson, Dockery, Dungan, Dunphy, Edmunds, Ellis, Enloe, Epes, Everett, Fitch, Forney, Fowler, Goodnight, Greenleaf, Greenleaf, Hall, Halvorson, Hamilton, Hatch, Hendon of North Carolina, Holman, Hooker of Mississippi, Johnstone of South Carolina, Jones, Kem, Kendall, Kilgore, Kibbs, Keyle, Lanham, Lawson of Virginia, Lawson of Georgia, Layton, Lester of Virginia, Lester of Georgia, Lewis, Little, Livingston, Long, Magnus, Mallory, Mansur, Martin, McCreary, McKelghan, McMillin, McKee, Meredith, Montgomery, Moore, Moses, Mutchler, Oates, O'Farrell, Otis, Guthrie, Owens, Page of Rhode Island, Parrett, Paynter, Pearson, Sawyer, Simpson, Snodgrass, Stewart of Texas, Tarsney, Torry, Tillman, Turner, Turpin, Van Horn, Wagner, Warwick, Washington, Watson, Wheeler of Michigan, Wheeler of Alabama, Wilcox, Williams of North Carolina, Wynn, Wynn, Youmans—123.

GLIMPSES OF THE SENATE.
Morgan Tackles Finance Again—The Option Bill Comes Up.

While the house was wrestling with the sundry civil bill the senate was listening to financial talk by Morgan, who, like "Ole Virginny," "never tires," and Stewart. True, Stewart was speaking as a privilege obtained by the consideration of the anti-option bill, but he never reached options once in his speech, devoting the entire time to a plea for more money. The resolution under which Morgan renewed the financial debate divested of the redundant verbiage of the whereases, etc., proposes that as the United States owes over $1,000,000,000 which by law is payable in gold, it is hereby ordered that it is all payable in silver or paper as the government may find it convenient.

Cannot Contract to Pay in Gold.
It also invalidates all contracts to pay debts in gold, because private indebtedness in this country is rapidly being contracted for payment in that metal, and this places the debtor class in dangerous subordination to the power of the man with money; also for the reason that the disparity between the amount of debts now or prospective and the amount of gold "in sight" is so great as to cause distrust in the soundness of our paper money. The resolution wants all the money—paper or otherwise—of the country at its present standard made full legal tender for all debts, public and private, without exception or restriction.

Legal Tender Law Essential.
In speaking to the resolution Morgan said the danger of the situation could not be exaggerated. The government had only $111,000,000 in gold to pay over $2,000,000,000 of debt which was held by the treasury and the practice of that department to be payable in gold, half of it on demand. It was a gross fraud to say that certain money was legal tender when it could be set aside by a contract. A legal tender law was just as essential to the welfare of a civilized people as the writ of habeas corpus.

Sherman Replies to Morgan.
Sherman said that there was not a proposition in the preamble of the resolution that was not disputable and nearly all were disproved by the plain language of the law. He took up each where as and answered it. He said the resolution declared that the people should have no right to contract with each other as to the manner of payment of their debts; that a contract to pay a debt in gold is void, a contract to pay in silver is void, a contract to pay in wheat or rye, or oats is void; that they have not sense enough to make their own

FAIR GETS NO CASH.

House Strikes Out the Appropriation.

ADVERSE MAJORITY OF THIRTEEN.

Hopes that the Senate May Stand Firm and See the Great Enterprise Through—Lists of the Men Who Voted Aye and Nay—Financial Discussion in the Senate—Morgan's Legal Tender Resolution the Subject—The Anti-Option Bill Up—Justice Bradley's Successor Appointed.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The World's fair appropriation is at the mercy of a conference. The house sent it there yesterday. What it may hope from that sort of body is somewhat problematical, but its friends are hopeful enough. The belief that the senate can and will insist successfully on the appropriation, and the fact that there was only thirteen majority against the clause would be in the senate's favor if its conferees should choose to stand by the appropriation. The house was quick enough, however, to adopt the provision that the fair be closed Sunday.

The Way Members Voted.
Upon the motion that the senate amendment appropriating $5,000,000 to the fair be non-concurred in the yeas vote was as follows: Alexander, Bailey, Baker, Bankhead, Beaman, Bentley, Blanchard, Brand, Branch, Breckinridge of Arkansas, Brookshire, Brown, Brunner, Bryan, Buchanan of Virginia, Bunn, Bunting, Butler, Byrnes, Campbell, Canth, Cate, Clancy, Clarke of Alabama, Closser, Cobb of Alabama, Cobb of Missouri, Compton, Coombs, Covert, Cowles, Cox of New York, Crain, Crawford, Crosby, Culbertson, Cummings, Davis, Deamond, De Forest, Dickerson, Dockery, Dungan, Dunphy, Edmunds, Ellis, Enloe, Epes, Everett, Fitch, Forney, Fowler, Goodnight, Greenleaf, Greenleaf, Hall, Halvorson, Hamilton, Hatch, Hendon of North Carolina, Holman, Hooker of Mississippi, Johnstone of South Carolina, Jones, Kem, Kendall, Kilgore, Kibbs, Keyle, Lanham, Lawson of Virginia, Lawson of Georgia, Layton, Lester of Virginia, Lester of Georgia, Lewis, Little, Livingston, Long, Magnus, Mallory, Mansur, Martin, McCreary, McKelghan, McMillin, McKee, Meredith, Montgomery, Moore, Moses, Mutchler, Oates, O'Farrell, Otis, Guthrie, Owens, Page of Rhode Island, Parrett, Paynter, Pearson, Sawyer, Simpson, Snodgrass, Stewart of Texas, Tarsney, Torry, Tillman, Turner, Turpin, Van Horn, Wagner, Warwick, Washington, Watson, Wheeler of Michigan, Wheeler of Alabama, Wilcox, Williams of North Carolina, Wynn, Wynn, Youmans—123.

GLIMPSES OF THE SENATE.
Morgan Tackles Finance Again—The Option Bill Comes Up.

While the house was wrestling with the sundry civil bill the senate was listening to financial talk by Morgan, who, like "Ole Virginny," "never tires," and Stewart. True, Stewart was speaking as a privilege obtained by the consideration of the anti-option bill, but he never reached options once in his speech, devoting the entire time to a plea for more money. The resolution under which Morgan renewed the financial debate divested of the redundant verbiage of the whereases, etc., proposes that as the United States owes over $1,000,000,000 which by law is payable in gold, it is hereby ordered that it is all payable in silver or paper as the government may find it convenient.

Cannot Contract to Pay in Gold.
It also invalidates all contracts to pay debts in gold, because private indebtedness in this country is rapidly being contracted for payment in that metal, and this places the debtor class in dangerous subordination to the power of the man with money; also for the reason that the disparity between the amount of debts now or prospective and the amount of gold "in sight" is so great as to cause distrust in the soundness of our paper money. The resolution wants all the money—paper or otherwise—of the country at its present standard made full legal tender for all debts, public and private, without exception or restriction.

Legal Tender Law Essential.
In speaking to the resolution Morgan said the danger of the situation could not be exaggerated. The government had only $111,000,000 in gold to pay over $2,000,000,000 of debt which was held by the treasury and the practice of that department to be payable in gold, half of it on demand. It was a gross fraud to say that certain money was legal tender when it could be set aside by a contract. A legal tender law was just as essential to the welfare of a civilized people as the writ of habeas corpus.

Sherman Replies to Morgan.
Sherman said that there was not a proposition in the preamble of the resolution that was not disputable and nearly all were disproved by the plain language of the law. He took up each where as and answered it. He said the resolution declared that the people should have no right to contract with each other as to the manner of payment of their debts; that a contract to pay a debt in gold is void, a contract to pay in silver is void, a contract to pay in wheat or rye, or oats is void; that they have not sense enough to make their own contracts as to the payment of their debts. Allison controverted the proposition in the preamble which said that the bonded debt of $1,000,000,000, and when Morgan asked how much it was said certainly less than $700,000,000.

The Anti-Option Bill Taken Up.
Morgan remarked that senators were not asked to vote for the preamble, and for the resolution. He had demanded the yeas and nays, but before they could be taken 2 p. m. arrived and the chair said the business in order was the anti-option measure. Wolcott moved that the senate proceed with Morgan's resolution; rejected—50 to 7—and the anti-option bill was at last permitted to be read. It was the Hatch bill with over twenty important amendments prepared by Washburn, and several other senators submitted amendments, all of which decreases the chance of the bill passing this session.

Stewart Scatters His Shot.
And then Stewart took the floor and made a speech that touched nearly every subject before congress except the bill under consideration. In his remarks he included the interstate commerce bill, the anti-trust bill, the McKinley bill and the feudal system of Europe as exemplified in the tenant farmer system—all these and other topics leading him to one conclusion, that the evils complained of and which the bill sought to remedy were really attributable to the shrinkage of values resulting from the maintenance of the gold standard and the demonetization of silver. Consequently he said he had not made up his mind how he would vote on the bill, but in the meantime would call the attention of the senate to his pending bill to reduce the value of which he directed the remainder of his remarks.

One of Washburn's Amendments.
Stewart spoke for an hour and nobody knew when he was done what he thought of the bill. Washburn's amendments were then agreed to. One of the most important provides that the provisions of the bill shall not apply to "any contract or agreement made with retail dealers to furnish and deliver to such retail dealer at a future time or within a designated period, of any such articles which are purchased for the consumption of such person, his family, guests, servants, or employees, or of any domestic animal or animals belonging to such person."

JUSTICE BRADLEY'S SUCCESSOR.
The President Fills the Vacancy on the Supreme Court Bench.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The president yesterday sent to the senate the name of Judge George Shiras, Jr., of Pennsylvania, to fill the vacancy in the supreme court caused by the death of Justice Bradley. Judge Shiras is about 60 years of age, a leading consulting attorney of Pittsburgh and has never before held public office of any kind. He is a man of deep learning, great experience and is considered eminently fitted for the supreme bench. He is a graduate of the famous '53 class of Yale, which graduated more celebrated men than any year before or since. Judge Shiras, of the supreme bench, and Channey M. Depew were in this class. His appointment was not only recommended by the Pennsylvania delegation but by persons of influence in all parts of the country.

Proceedings in Congress.
WASHINGTON, July 20.—Little was accomplished in the senate yesterday except to discuss a financial proposition of Morgan without result, and to read the anti-option bill, and to amend it according to Washburn's views, leaving many other amendments pending. The only senator who spoke on the bill was Stewart, and his remarks were directed to almost every other topic except those embraced in the bill.

In the house the appropriation of $5,000,000 to the World's fair in the sundry civil bill was voted down, 110 to 123, and the Sunday closing paragraph inserted by the senate was sustained by a vote of 147 to 61. An amendment was inserted forbidding the letting of any contract by any government officer to any one who employs the Pinkerton detective agency or other similar organization and prohibiting their employment by the government.

The District of Columbia. The sundry civil was then passed as amended. A resolution was passed for the appointment of a special committee of five members to investigate the election laws and methods in the city and county of New York.

This gang is one of the most dangerous in the country, its members resorting even to murder to carry on their business in secrecy.

SKYMOOT, Ind., July 20.—July 3 word came here that Charles Finehart, of Seymour, was dead at Vera Cruz, Mex., and relatives ordered his body sent home. Last evening Finehart telegraphed from Vera Cruz that he is very much alive and well. It is not known who is responsible for the base swindle.

Taylor, of 5123 McKissock street, and Matthew Mailey, of 195 North Third street—taking poison, from which they died Sunday night. Nearly all the cases are attributed to poor health and despondency.

LOVED LIKE A MAN.

Developments in the Freda Ward Murder Case.

SOME MORE REMARKABLE POINTS

Letters that Passed Between the Two Girls Show that Their Love Was Honorable and Exactly Similar to That Felt by a Man and Woman for Each Other—It Also Indicates Two Other Girls—A Psychological Feature of the Correspondence that was Abandoned.

MEMPHIS, July 20.—From the tenor of the letters that passed between Freda Ward and Alice Mitchell one is led to the conclusion that each was infatuated with the other, and that Alice loved Freda as man loves woman, and that Freda loved

FREDA WARD. ALICE MITCHELL.
Alice as woman regards man. A prominent physician, discussing the case from a scientific standpoint, said the story of these two girls gave rise to a problem for psychologists, viz: can one woman love another as a man, without being insane, and when this love is reciprocated, are not both insane?

Their Love was Contagious.
The case now shows that Alice first loved Freda as a man, and that after the usual amount of wooing reciprocation followed, and that the lovers in the early stages of their infatuation infected their other female companions with like passions; for Lillie Johnson, Alice Mitchell's chum, and Jo Ward, Freda's sister, were devoted to each other, and the relations between these two were beyond the mere girlish fancy of one girl for another.

Letters and Trinkets of Alice.
Testimony was introduced yesterday showing that insanity was a feature of Mrs. Mitchell's family, several of her relatives having been insane at times. The letters, reduced showed that Alice loved Freda as an honorable man loves a pure girl. These letters were brought into court by Robert Mitchell, Alice's half-brother. With them were her trinkets—marbles, tops, base balls and other boyish playthings. The letters also contained copies of letters from Alice to Freda and Freda's original letters to Alice.

Novel Feature of the Correspondence.
When Alice and Freda became engaged and were finally separated Alice told Freda to write to her as Freda Ward, telling her that she (Freda) was in love with Freda Ward and not Alice Mitchell, for Alice Mitchell's personality had been merged into that of Freda Ward. Freda Ward then wrote to Freda and her letters were couched in the most endearing terms. Alice, of course, received the letters and became, after a time, jealous of the mythical Freda. She thereupon wrote to Freda and told her that Freda Ward was dead.

MADE LOVER IN CIPHER.

Freda's Consolation for the Death of Her Mythical Self.

The letters that passed between the young ladies were written in cipher made up of capital and Greek letters. In one of the letters Freda bewails the death of the mythical Freda, but she consoles herself with the reflection that she loves Alice better than this dead fiction of the imagination. Freda tells Alice in this letter that she worships her, while she only loves Ashley Roselle. Later on she says she loves only Alice.

Wild with Joy Over Elopement.
In other letters Freda discussed the proposition to elope, and was wild with joy when Alice told her that they would in a short time leave for St. Louis. The presentation of the engagement ring brought back such a letter as would follow a similar presentation by a boy of 19 years to a girl of 17. When Freda's sister broke into the plan to elope the girl wrote most heart-rending effusions to Alice. She swore that she would marry none other than Alice.

Peculiar Objection to Tobacco.
On a slip of paper was found written in Alice's cursive various ways for producing death, among them cutting, stabbing, poisoning, shooting and smothering. Another paper bore the legend, "twelve grains of atropia." In another letter from Freda she told Alice that if she chewed tobacco she would not kiss her, as she did not desire her husband to use either tobacco or liquor, as its bad effects often went to other generations. When the letters from Freda to Alice were being read the defendant for the first time since her incarceration showed visible signs of excitement.

What We Owe to the Arabs.
It was to the Arabs and the Jews that two probably owe the discovery of America. From them the Spaniards and Portuguese learned all that they knew of civilization. The Arabs from the Ninth to the Twelfth centuries were the rulers of the sea, the founders of European commerce. Edrisi, the Arab historian, describes the harbors of Almeria, in Spain, filled with the ships of the east and of Lisbon (Eschbona), the center of wealth and trade. Two Mohammedan travelers, or one, who visited China in the Ninth century, found its ports frequented by the vessels of their countrymen, who sailed around the coasts of India. Edrisi again describes the China seas, unknown to Greek and Roman, and the Chinese ships as the finest of their kind.

The adventurous Arab sailors were found in every sea. It is from them that Portugal and Spain learned the art of shipbuilding, as most of the other arts. In 1466 the Spaniards everywhere clothed in Arab dress, imitating the Arab manners, riding Arab horses and the kings surrounded by Arab guards. Splendid Cordova and matchless Granada still ruled the taste of the peninsula. Even the chief terms of business and naval affairs, of police and finance, the Spaniards borrowed from the Arabs. The maravedi, an Arab coin, was used in the time of Columbus to express all their moneyed transactions.—Eugene Lawrence in Harper's.

Baby Language.

The matron of a well managed founding institution in this city, when interrogated the other day, said: "I am almost convinced if little babies were left to themselves they would form a curious language of their own. In it sounds soft and simple would predominate and gestures would form half of the conversation. Have you ever studied the faces of these little sprites and seen their big, bright eyes twinkle and their chubby little fingers and dimpled hands restlessly move without ceasing, day in and day out? Their language would be cute enough and all monosyllables.

"Without much talk they manage to communicate with each other so as to be understood, and curious little sounds will express their pleasure, disgust, contempt, love or hate. Of course we call it 'baby talk' or 'infant's prattle,' but if they were to work out their own way of communication it would be a regular built language, and a concise one too."

The Weavers Among the Moqui Indians.

The Moqui Indians are the best weavers in America, except the once remarkable but now less skillful Navajos, and their mantas (the characteristic black woolen dresses of Pueblo women) and dancing girdles are so famous that the Indians of the Rio Grande valley often travel 300 miles or more on foot or on burros, simply to trade for the long wearing products of the rude, homemade looms of Moqui. The Moquis also make valuable and very curious fur blankets by twisting the skins of rabbits into ropes and then sewing these together—a custom which Colorado found among them 350 years ago, before there were any sheep to yield wool for such fabrics as their now weave, and when their only dress materials were skins and the cotton they raised.—Charles F. Lummis in St. Nicholas.

Why There Are No Cross Eyed Actors.

A person with cross or squint eyes is considered a hoodoo on the stage. Woe to the company which carries a man or woman with his or her optics in this condition! Disaster dire will surely overtake them. Likewise a lameness, a clubfoot or a deformed hand will give to the person so afflicted the dreaded title and make it almost impossible for him to "strut his hour upon the stage." To have a cross eyed person look you squarely in the face is a sign of bad luck for thirty days.

An antidote to the effect of the evil eye is to cross your first fingers on each hand, and then eject spittle three times through the notch thus formed. To turn on your heel three times and spit over your left shoulder will, it is thought, avert the evil.—Chicago Herald.

Some Maori Traits.

A dusky worshiper, whose requests for blankets had at last elicited a decided refusal from the missionary, replied, "Kapai" (good); "no more blankets, no more hallelujahs," and thereupon returned to the faith of his fathers. No less humorous, though in another way, was the remark of a Maori who had claimed a piece of land and had been asked to tell the court on what proof he relied for his title. Pointing to the rival claimant he said simply, "I ate his father."—All the Year Round.

Clams Breed Rapidly.

The spawning season of the clam is in June and July. The eggs are carried between the gills, where they develop until they are provided with minute triangular shells, when they are ejected into the water as young clams and left to their own devices. Very few of these baby clams ever reach maturity, being gobbled up as choice morsels by the fish of the sea. But the clam is a prolific breeder, and a bed that is exhausted this season will be full of clams next year.—Cor. New York Sun.

"For several years I have recommended your 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results." EDWIN F. PARKER, M. D., "The Winthrop," 15th Street and 7th Ave., New York City.

EDITORIAL TELEGRAPH.—In your daily of July 16th a proposition was made to appoint Mrs. Mary Noble to the office of president of the Humane Society, providing she would accept. Now it occurs to me that this is a very wise choice, and it seems very appropriate that a woman should head an organization like this with such a grand purpose in view and so justly named the Humane Society. The office of president of this society seems peculiarly adapted to one of the gentler sex. Their perceptive powers are keener than those of men, and their perseverance is proverbial. "If she will she will, you may depend on't," and these characteristics are very essential in this noble cause. With all due regard for the stern sex, men are like steam engines, some have scant power for the task assigned them while others have any amount of surplus power. It is like steam hissing at every joint and rivet. Is it not wise to turn it to some good use? Yes; make it run a crank of some kind, and do something more and better than merely make a noise in the world. What we need is more power, more steam in the Humane Society, more help for these dumb brutes who are so helplessly at the mercy of their many tyrannical masters. Let us see this cause pushed forward and the work go on till every man, woman and child within our reach are active members of this grand organization. To the late Col. Noble this society owes a debt of gratitude for his fearlessness, his perseverance in furthering this work; and thus it would seem especially fitting that Mrs. Noble should fill the vacancy so admirably filled by her late husband.

A motion was made to adjourn to meet in September as it was decided not to have a meeting in August; but intend all attend the World's Fair day at the Assembly.

 John the Dutchman who was working for Chas. Hilderbrand, let Cass's team run away with the corn plow last Friday. The plow was a tongueless one, and John turned a little too short and turned it over on the horses. A shovel struck one of the horses on the hip, and cut a gash in it about five inches long, and cut the other horse a little in the flank. Charles caught the Dutchman by the neck and told him to tell him just how it happened. John was somewhat frightened and he says he "just hauled off and punched Sharley on the end of the nose," and run down through the corn field and left. He was seen at the post office the next morning with a terribly swollen hand.
 Tommy Falders has invented the latest thing out, (a sheep shade). Almost everybody stops to see it. We have all ways heard it said that all sheep cares for is to get his head in the shade. Tommy has tried it. He set a row of posts in his pasture and nailed a six inch board on top of them, and on a warm day the sheep'll stand along in a row with their heads in the shade of the board.

It jumped a three board and two strand wire fence, leaving the buggy top on the fence. The buggy turned up side down and the horse stopped uninjured.

 Mr. Van Pelt, Editor of the Craig, Mo., Meteor, went to a drug store at Hillsdale, Iowa, and asked the physician in attendance to give him a dose for cholera morbus and looseness of the bowels. He says: "I felt so much better the next morning that I concluded to call on the physician and get him to fix me up a supply of the medicine. I was surprised when he handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He said he prescribed it regularly in his practice and found it the best he could get or prepare. I can testify to its efficiency in my case at all events." For sale by Tillson & Hayden, Druggists.
